KYOTO, JAPAN

Kyoto became the capital of Japan in the 8th century. It flourished as the center for Japanese politics, economy and culture for some 1,100 years, until the capital functions were transferred to Tokyo in the mid-19th century. There remain many temples and shrines in Kyoto that were built during this long period. Seventeen historic sites including, Kiyomizu-dera Temple and Nijo Castle, are inscribed as World Cultural Heritage Sites.

However, visitors may be surprised by how much work they will have to do to see Kyoto's beautiful side. Most first impressions of the city will be of the urban sprawl of central Kyoto, around the ultra-modern glass-and-steel train station, which is itself an example of a city steeped in tradition colliding with the modern world. Nonetheless, the persistent visitor will soon discover Kyoto's hidden beauty in the temples and parks which ring the city center, and find that the city has much more to offer than immediately meets the eye.

Climate: Japan has four distinct seasons and Kyoto is one of a few places that have clearer differences than other places of the archipelago. Kyoto has a humid subtropical climate (Köppen Cfa), featuring a marked seasonal variation in temperature and precipitation. Summers are hot and humid, but winters are relatively cold with occasional snowfall. Kyoto's rain season begins around the middle of June and lasts until the end of July, yielding to a hot and sunny latter half of the summer.

Weather: October has some of the best weather of the year: sunny and warm days are the rule, with cool evenings. It's a very comfortable time to travel. At the very end of the month, the leaves start to change color. Average high & low temperatures in October are 22°C & 13°C respectively.

Clothing: Bring a long-sleeve shirt and a coat or sweater. When rain looks likely, you'll need rain gear and waterproof shoes or sandals.

HIRONO GOLF COURSE

7 Chome-3 Shijimicho Hirono, Miki, Hyogo
Prefecture 673-0541, Japan

DETAILS

Japan's premier golf club, famously private and exclusive, Hirono was founded in 1932 by a group of golfers who acquired an estate from an ex-feudal warlord near the seaport city of Kobe. They contacted British designer Charles Alison, who was then working on other courses in Japan, to design the club. Attracted by the many lakes, ponds, dams, natural ravines and woodland, Alison accepted the job, predicting it would be the best course in Japan.

Hirono received the first place award out of 2,400 courses in the ranking of Japan's golf courses by Japan Golf Classic Magazine, and U.S. Golf Magazine rated it the 35th best course in the world, supporting Alison's statement in which he said, "I can name no superior among British inland courses".

COFFEE TABLE BOOK OF KYOTO

PLACED IN GUESTS' HOTEL ROOMS UPON ARRIVAL

DETAILS

Seeing Kyoto captures all the elegance and charm of Japan's most beloved city with dozens of stunning images. One can imagine the days when aristocrats and samurai inhabited these neighborhoods. With insightful text, long-time Japan resident Juliet Carpenter delves into the cultural history of Kyoto, as well as its treasures—artistic, culinary, and historical. She also introduces the neighboring city of Nara, often referred to as "little Kyoto." Finally, Carpenter tackles the clash of old and new: how Kyotoites, in their inimitable vigor, are turning the traditions of yesterday into the strengths of today.

JAPANESE FOLDING FAN (KYO-SENSU)

PLACED IN GUESTS' HOTEL ROOMS UPON ARRIVAL

DETAILS

Folding fans were invented in Japan, originally for their nobility to hide their face in the 800s, like a kind of masquerade. They were exported to China and later used by the European Royalty, but their design evolved to western taste with the addition of feathers and other materials. These days folding fans are used to cool down and folded for ease of travel.

These fans are used in traditional Japanese dance (Nihonbyou) which a lucky few may see as part of a geisha's performance, but fortunately in Kyoto daily dance performances can be seen nightly at Gion Corner.
